Council plans special NAIDOC ceremony

The culture and history of Indigenous Australians will be honoured with a special flag raising and celebratory event on Tuesday 10 July.

The free family fun day will be held at the Camden Council administration building on Central Avenue Oran Park, as part of NAIDOC week.

Mayor Lara Symkowiak said everyone was invited to join in the celebration.

“Each year NAIDOC celebrations are held across the nation during July, and Camden Council is proud to continue this tradition and host an event to honour our Indigenous community,” Cr Symkowiak said.

“This is a great chance to bring our residents together, learn more about the history of our Indigenous people and recognise their contributions to our community and to Australia.”

The upcoming event will include a flag raising ceremony at 10.30am, followed by performances, bush tucker and traditional Indigenous games and activities.

Morning tea and lunch will be provided.

This year's theme: Because of her, we can! focuses on the active role of Indigenous women.

The NAIDOC flag raising and family fun day will be held at 70 Central Avenue Oran Park on Tuesday 10 July from 10.30am to 2pm.
